THE OPERA.

By the National Opera Company to Crowded and Appreciative Houses—The Programme for This and Tomorrow Evenings.

The last performances of the season at first proposed for Los Angeles by the National Opera Company were given at the Pavilion yesterday afternoon and evening to immense and appreciative audiences. Extended reviews of both operas—The Merry Wives of Windsor and Aida—will be found below.

So superb has been the welcome, so warm the appreciation given by the people of Los Angeles, that it is no wonder the National Opera Company has decided to extend its engagement here by two nights. It had no such audiences in San Francisco as it has had here. In fact, the Grand Opera-house in San Francisco will seat barely 3500 people; while our great Pavilion held nearly 4000 auditors at the production of Waverley, night before last.

Subscribers can get their tickets at McLain & Lehman's office, for the two remaining performances, up to 10 o'clock this morning, after which the general public will be given a chance.

The National Opera Company starts East at about midnight Saturday night, going over the Santa Fe route. So warm have been their welcome in Los Angeles that they have cancelled most of their Kansas City engagements, but will give a matinee and an evening performance there next Wednesday.

THE OPERAS.

"Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Aida" Produced Here.

At the matinee yesterday, Nicolai's opera of The Merry Wives of Windsor was presented to a large audience. Pauline L'Allemant and Jessie Bartlett Davis singing the roles of the "Merry Wives," and enchanting all listeners. The ladies each made the most of the opportunities afforded by the light, sparkling music of this pretty opera, and also imparted to the dramatic action all the necessary grace and abandon required.

The elfin ball in the last act was the most charming thing in the way of pastoral simplicity and poetic coloring which the company has yet given us.

In the evening, Verdi's great work, written for the Grand Opera of Paris, and first produced in Calio in 1872, was given, and from a spectacular point of view, was the grandest of the operas presented this week.

Agile glitters with semi-barbaric splendor, and its music is characterized by the warlike blare of trumpets, the marches of victorious soldiers, and the prophetic choruses of an imperious priesthood. All energy, noise, strife and restless movement. The triumphal entry of "Radames," through the gates of the city of Thebes, was a masterpiece of scenic arrangement and stage effect. Bertha Pierson, in the title role, while not appearing to so much advantage as in Lohengrin, was yet the recipient of much applause, as was Cornelia Van Zanten, who filled the thankless part of "Amneris" with genuine dramatic fervor and fine musical effect. Candideus, as "Radames," sang as well as usual, but was entirely too tame in his acting.

If he had been on a concert platform he could not have been more perfect. The rest of the principal characters were filled by Myron Whitney, Ludwig and Hamilton, who are all so well known as to make further comment unnecessary.

The audience, while not so large as at the First night, was an immense one, and testified its delight by a number of recalls. Some desire has been manifested each evening for portions of those present to sing upon the stage, but the majority seem now to understand the sensible rule that repetitions are not allowed.

Tonight the one-act opera of The Marriage of Figaro will be given, and the vivacious Pauline L'Allemant in the cast. This will be followed by the grand ballet in three acts entitled Coppelia, which will afford an opportunity of seeing the intricate and pantomimic action of the ballet.

The company's successful engagement here will terminate on Saturday night with the production of Rubenstein's grand opera of Nero, under the direction of Theodore Thomas. This is the most elaborate and splendid of the new operas, and is a masterpiece of scenic arrangement and stage effect. OUR SEWERAGE.

ENGINEERING EXPERTS WAR-
ING AND ROSEWATER

Have a Lively Epistolary Tilt About It
—Variant Ideas as to the System the City Ought to Have—The Sewerage
Systems of Various Cities Cited.

A few days ago THE TIMES published a long interview with Andrew Rosewater, late City Engineer of Omaha, and an engineer of experience and repute. He severely criticised the scheme proposed by Col. Waring for the sewerage of Los Angeles, and told something about the sort of a system this city should have. This interview called out the following letter from Col. Waring:

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I have received the copy of the San Diego Union, quoting an interview with Mr. Andrew Rosewater, from your issue of May 12th.

Concerning this gentleman's references to my character and capacity as an engineer I have nothing to say. I desire only to set forth certain facts which he has misstated, and to correct an impression which he has deftly tried to produce.

The sewerage of Pullman was designed and constructed by Mr. Williams after my plans for Memphis had been fully described, and in close conformity therewith. Mr. Vibbard was employed to design the sewerage of Kalamazoo, under an agreement to make his plans satisfactory to me, I being employed by the city as consulting engineer. Mr. Vibbard was my assistant in Memphis, and his plans were made under the Memphis system, and the sewers so constructed. The works at Schenectady were designed by Prof. Staley according to my system, and carried out by Mr. Pierson, who had gained his experience under Mr. Vibbard at Kalamazoo.

Mr. Vibbard at Kalamazoo was in violation of my patents a little roof-water is admitted, with the reservation that it may hereafter be excluded, as it will be. There is no other essential deviation from my methods.

I was not "consulted" in connection with others, by the authorities of Omaha and Lincoln. I was employed alone, and made the plan for both cities. These plans were adopted. In Omaha they were carried out. It is possible that in Lincoln Mr. Rosewater may have bedeviled them to some extent. The committee assured me that they would do what they could to prevent this, at the time when he was engaged in the original plan, made in 1872.

I never claimed that the Denver sewers were made under my plan, nor that I originated the separate system. What I did originate was a system from which all rain-water is excluded, and which is flushed by automatic tanks. All previous "separate" systems admitted at least roof-water, and no system before mine was automatically flushed.

What is said about six-inch pipes and other details is nonsense. Most of the fourteen miles of sewers in Keene, N. H., built in 1882-83, are of six-inch pipes, and notwithstanding the very flat grades of that city, this restricted size has not yet caused a single obstruction.

However, I have no desire to interfere with Mr. Rosewater's self-advocacy. There is room enough for him and me and a hundred others. I would merely say that in devising the system at San Diego I was influenced by a fair amount of previous experience, that I have never yet known any community regret having followed my professional advice, and that though here, as elsewhere, needy surveyors try to reap where I have sown, their harvesting is not usually profitable to the owners of the field.

GEORGE E. WARING, JR.

A READY REPLY.

Mr. Rosewater Answers Col. Waring's Answer Pointedly.

Mr. Rosewater, being about to leave the city, was given an opportunity to make a simultaneous reply to the above, which he does as follows:

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The letter of Col. Waring in reference to your published interview with me upon the subject of sewerage, calls for a prompt reply. In the first place Col. Waring has no occasion to insinuate that his character had been assailed or his abilities brought in question, for no one who has read the interview can by any possible means distort it into such a construction. If Col. Waring considers his character assailed by my citation of facts as to the actual designs of plans for a number of cities, which had been erroneously accredited to him, then I cannot help it.

The San Francisco Chronicle of the 5th published, among other things in connection with its interview with Col. Waring, the following: "Among other cities which have introduced Col. Waring's plans are Omaha, Kalamazoo, Mich., Lincoln, Neb., Norfolk, Va., Schenectady, N.Y., Stamford, Conn., Keene, N. H., Pullman, Ill., and Birmingham, Ala."

In referring to this I stated that Col. Waring must have been misunderstood, as certainly he had not designed the plans of a large majority of the cities. Col. Waring did not have anything whatever to do with designing the plans for quite a number of them. Col. Waring substantiates this very statement by admitting that Mr. Benzelie Williams, of Chicago, designed the Pullman plans, and Prof. Staley those of Schenectady. Mr. Vibbard those of Kalamazoo, etc.

To claim credit for any one's plans, simply because at some former period that person had been in his employ, is not only unprofessional, but absurd. As well might a professor of a college claim credit for the designs of its graduates, because they had been under his tutelage. The most singular thing of all is, that Col. Waring disclaims the Denver sewer system. What strange inconsistency! The Denver system is as much a separate system as that of Memphis. It is superior to the latter in that it contains a number of years use, with a much larger population, the Denver system has met with no difficulties whatever, and the mains have not had to be enlarged by a "relief main," as Col. Waring admits to have been the case with Memphis. Inasmuch as Mr. Lowrie reported upon the Denver plan of sewers as early as 1876 to the State Board of Health of Colorado, his plan cannot be charged with being a copy of the Memphis system, built in 1870, and yet Col. Waring claims to be the inventor of the separate system. A few words now about Omaha and Lincoln. Omaha employed several engineers at different periods to devise plans. Waring was among the number. His plans were only carried out in a small part of the city, and at the request of the Council I devised all the details—among them the automatic flushing devices. The six-inch laterals, as designed by Col. Waring, in the center of the city caused so much trouble before the close of the first two years as to render the construction of manholes an absolute necessity—and last year one of the lines was displaced by a twelve-inch sewer-pipe, and the sewer inspection, owing to the constant trouble, has recommended the displacement of a second line this year. The fact is that in all probability all the lines in the central business part of the city will be replaced by larger pipes within a few years. Outside of about nine miles of the thirty miles of sewers in Omaha, the others were designed by myself, and the major part are combination storm sewers.

The authorities of the city of Lincoln, Neb., after securing plans from Chester B. Davis for $2000, and Col. Waring for $1500 ("cheap engineering"), called upon me unsolicited, and after securing my opinion and canvassing the plans a six-inch lateral, employed the firm, of which I am senior member, to make new and all necessary details, and supervise the engineering for the sum of $6000, the highest price of any case by several engineers who were consulted, and the only occasion for any feeling on the part of Col. Waring is that, aside from eight inches in place of six inches, and providing for manholes, the other patentable details and specifications were so changed upon my advice as to admit of open competition and preclude the payment of royalties for the combinations for which the Boston Construction Company claim to have patents, and of which company Col. Waring is the controlling spirit. The royalty charged, or rather claimed, in all these cases, is the modest sum of 10 cents per lineal foot of sewer-pipe laid in the system. Col. Waring cites Keene, N. H., as a town where six-inch pipe have never failed. Considering that Omaha is a city of nearly 100,000 population, and Keene, a town of 10,000, it strikes me that the test of the former is the safer one to go by. The allusions in Col. Waring to those who may vary with him in opinion as "cheap surveyors," does not meet the manly argument or supply the evidence that he is to be expected of skilled engineers, and is on a par with some similar discussions by Waring with Mr. Rudolf Herring, the eminent consulting sewerage engineer of Chicago, and for many years of Philadelphia, and others of nearly equal prominence.

There is one other feature, aside from the injudiciousness of excluding manholes from the system, and using six-inch laterals, on flat grades, referred to in my interview, and that is the desire, for economy's sake, to place sewers in depths of six to nine feet, instead of twelve to fourteen feet, to subvert cellar and drainage.

Numerous occasions arise when either by storm or the bursting of water-pipes in the buildings, the ready means of cellar drainage may save thousands in valuable property. I need not cite the case of the Omaha, where two years ago an elevator cylinder-head burst in Mayor Broache's basement, filling it up almost before the sewer opening could be reached, and but for the thoroughness of the sewer, several hundred thousands of goods would have been ruined. This is one of countless cases liable to arise. And now, in conclusion, I do not care to search for the discredited cities that Col. Waring challenges to be quoted—not even to the extent of inquiring after the intercepting sewer of Buffalo. Nor do I propose to inquire into the reasons why Newport, Col. Waring's home, and all of the countless number of cities in New England that are being sewered, only the villages of Keene and Stamford should rush to the "father of sanitary engineers" for advice.

ANDREW ROSEWATER.

THE SUICIDE.

An Inquest on the Cause of His Death.

Coroner J. M. Meredith summoned a jury, and, yesterday morning, held an inquest on the body of Henry W. Beattie, who was found hanging dead in a granary on John Hall's ranch, in Chahuenga, Wednesday.

The brother of deceased, William C. Beattie, testified that Henry had been in bad health for some time.

John Brashear and Timothy O'Brien deposed that they were employed on the ranch; that it was the duty of deceased to do the cooking and look after the house; that, on returning from work at noon on Wednesday, they did not see him about the house, and, on searching, found his body hanging from a rafter in the granary.

John Hall, owner of the ranch, testified that he knew nothing of the death until told of it at 2 o'clock p.m. on Wednesday; that deceased had never been well since he knew him.

Dennis Sullivan's evidence was that he saw Henry Wednesday morning, when he seemed as usual.

Dr. Cohn testified to making a post-mortem; that deceased was about 18 years old, six feet tall, well-nourished, and came to his death by strangulation.

On this evidence the jury, composed of E. S. Roberts, C. E. Roberts, A. Caldwell, J. M. Connolly, A. Labonge and William Stanley, found that Henry Wood Beattie, a native of California, aged about 18 years, came to his death on the 18th day of May "by his own hand, of strangulation by hanging, while laboring under great mental depression."

His despondency over his ill health is supposed to have driven the poor boy to his rash deed.

Young Beattie was a lad of unusually good habits and upright character.

A Pleasant Chautauqua Evening at Long Beach.

On Wednesday evening a highly interesting entertainment was given by the members of the Long Beach local circle of the C. L. S. C. at the M. E. Church Tabernacle, consisting of essays, etc., by the members of the circle.

The following is the PROGRAMME.

Class Chorus—Members of the C. L. S. C.
Essay, "English Literature"—Mrs. M. H. Williams.
Essay, "Milton's Poems"—Miss Grace Bush.
Essay, "Geology"—W. C. Davis.
Essay, "French Literature"—Miss Clara Blackman.
Piano Solo—Miss Carrie Elwood.
Recital—Rev. S. J. Fleming.
Essay, "English History"—Dr. M. H. Williams.

Essay, "Warren Hastings"—Miss Cora Elwood.
Essay, "Astronomy"—Mrs. Hart.
Organ Solo—Miss Carrie Elwood.
"The Work of the Year"—President of the circle, Rev. S. J. Fleming.

Class Chorus—Members of the C. L. S. C.
After dispensing these intellectual feasts to the enjoyment of all present the circle and a few invited friends repaired to the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Williams, where refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream, cake, etc., after which the balance of the evening was spent in those innocent amusements which seem at times to be absolutely essential to the happiness, sociability and longevity of the human family. Long Beach is making rapid strides in its preparations for the great Chautauqua Assembly of Southern California, which begins July 20th and continues for three weeks. It is fully expected that there will be several thousand persons present at the opening night.

A Promising Singer.

Miss Clara Mears, who took the part of the "Priestess" in the operatic Atala, at the Pavilion last evening, is a niece of Mrs. S. Kelley, of the Highland Villa, in this city. The lady has received considerable commendation for her musical talents from eastern critics. A TIMES reporter had the pleasure of listening to some operatic extracts as rendered by her yesterday afternoon, and her voice and the manner in which she controlled and modulated it in these renderings were evidence of much more than the usual possession of musical talent, which will make the lady more widely known in the not distant future.

Burglars at Pomona.

When the postmaster at Pomona opened his office yesterday morning he found that some one had opened it ahead of him. The floor was strewn with papers, and the outside door of the safe was ajar. Burglars had broken into the office and coaxed the safe with giant powder. A man upstairs, and several of the neighbors heard the explosion, but they didn't know what it was. Fortunately the safe is burglar-proof, and the robbers got no deeper than the outside door. The Pomona postoffice is doing a big business nowadays, and the burglars, undoubtedly the same gang that cracked the safe of the Pomona Land and Water Company a few days ago, expected a rich harvest. They got nothing.

Cement.
The Los Angeles Storage Commission and Lumber Company, San Pedro street, near Third, are doing the largest business in cement of any concern in the southern part of the State. Being agents of Davis & Cowell, the heaviest importers of cement in the State, and having superior warehouse facilities, they can sell cement as low or lower than any other dealers, and will not be undersold.

Roth & Quarre, of the Diamond House, have just received a fine assortment of opera-glasses direct from the celebrated firm of Lammle, Paris, and will sell same at prices lower than ever offered.

CARRI

THE RACES.

SECOND DAY OF THE TURF CLUB MEETING.

Some Fair Races and Some Dull Ones—Not Much of a Crowd—The Gamblers Held Down—A Jap in Trouble.

The second day of the races, held by the Turf Club at Agricultural Park, was not as largely attended yesterday as on the day of opening. The sports and lovers of horses were there in force, with a large representation of the frail sisterhood and a few respectable ladies. The presence of the demimonde was emphasized by their holding open levees in their carriages, in which champagne flowed freely and an air of "a great big time" seemed to pervade the atmosphere of the park.

Of the races the trotting was too one-sided to excite interest, but the mile running race was worth seeing.

Soudan and Leonore were the only horses entered for the trotting race, beat three in five. Soudan had the race from the beginning and won in three straight heats.

The first heat found the crowd all attention, for the bookmakers had sold a good many tickets on both horses. Soudan led and won easily in 3:37 1/4.

In the second heat Leonore took the lead and held it until the third quarter, with Soudan all the time closing up. Soudan passed quickly and came under the wire full fifty yards ahead, owing to Leonore's breaking. Time, 3:34 1/4.

The third heat was of little interest, although the time was shortened by Soudan winning in 3:35 1/4. Very little money was changed hands on this race after the first heat, as the sports saw the way the wind was blowing.

For the mile dash, running race, Carmelita, Mazinita, Billy Johnson and Adam were entered. Carmelita sold highest in the pool, with Mazinita second. A pretty start was made and the horses were off like the wind, Adam taking the lead, Carmelita next, and Billy Johnson third, with Mazinita several paces behind. Adam and Carmelita went neck and neck around the track, making a pretty picture of a speed contest as is often seen. On the home stretch Carmelita forged a neck ahead of Adam, and the crowd were shouting the favorite's victory, when Adam's rider lifted him almost off his feet and sent him under the wire four or five inches in the lead. The men whose money was wagered on the field were the heaviest shouters. Time, 1:44.

Adam, Origin and Sleepy John were entered for the three-eighths mile dash and repeat. Sleepy John took the lead, and was rounded by Origin, who was in turn, closely pushed by Adam, but won by a couple of feet, in 37 1/2 seconds. Origin won the repeat in good style, and more money changed hands, for Sleepy John had drawn many bets against odds.

At the close of the regular programme a scrub race, for a new hat, followed, which was the amusing feature of the afternoon. John McMenomy, who had a little black and white in a sulky and trotted a mile against a big sorrel horse, hitched to a four-wheel buckboard, driven by the owner, Walker. Constable Ed Smith was selected as judge, and McDonald acted as time-keeper.

McMenomy got a new whip and started into the race with a determination to win. The start was made with chances even. The sorrel trotted quietly, but the little black broke badly and John, for fear of being distanced, ran him for a quarter, until called down by the judge. The race was won by Walker in 3:30.

Gambling again, were restricted to the modest fortune-wheel. A game of craps was indulged in by a mixed audience in the stable-yard, and many a dollar changed pockets on shooting of the dice. The only disturbance was that occasioned by a Jap, who could not understand the fortune-wheel game. A commotion was caused by his arrest, but he was released at the gate.

THE DAIRYMAIDS.

The Elaborate Festival They Will Give Next Week.

The grand pavilion, corner of Olive and Fifth streets, will be occupied during the evenings of the week beginning May 25th with something entirely new and novel in the line of public entertainments. It will be gotten up by the ladies of the First Congregational Church. It is called the Dairymaids' Festival, and is intended to represent faithfully the various phases of Swiss cottage life, and among some of its attractions will be the dairymaid's home, a large Swiss cottage; the veranda and flower garden of the cottage; the arbor, the sugar-house, the icehouse, the granary, the springhouse, the old well and the barnyard.

All of these will be realistically constructed on a large scale, with the appropriate presiding geniuses and a supply of light refreshments, ice-cream, soda, lemonade, strawberries, sherbet, syllabub, etc.

The icehouse, to be of ice, covered with straw, and a fairy cave and fountain, will be shown under a beautiful combination of colored and prismatic lights. In addition to these features, a grand musical, allegorical and historical entertainment will be given each evening, assisted by Sherman's "Illusions, or Lights and Shades of Nature," a modern and mysterious combination of optical deceptions. The ladies in charge will be in costume, and strict attention will be given to all details and scenic effects, with the intention to give full satisfaction to all who attend. The general admission will be 25 cents, or $1 for the season of six nights.

OVER THE CHICKENS.

Mr. Cardwell Causes the Arrest of a Neighbor.

The time of Justice Taney was occupied yesterday afternoon in hearing a charge of battery, preferred against Frank Tyler, of East Los Angeles, by R. G. Cardwell. The trouble originated over some chickens. The parties live neighbors, with only an alley separating them, and the members of Mr. Cardwell's family had been amusing themselves by binding the legs of some of Mr. Tyler's chickens with cords, causing inconvenience and injury to the birds.

Mr. Tyler went to Mr. Cardwell's barn on the evening of May 12th to remonstrate against this style of treating his property, and the conference came to blows. There were two "pitched battles" over the affair at that time and place, to which members of both families were witnesses. The complaining witness testified that Tyler was the aggressor in the trouble. Some of the evidence given was quite interesting in a certain sense, and the case is strongly contested on both sides. After examining five or six witnesses on each side the cause was continued to this morning at 8:15 o'clock.

THAT SUNDAY ROW.

What William Schumaker Had to Do with It.

A jury in Justice Austin's courtroom spent most of the afternoon yesterday in trying to find out whether William Schumaker, a barkeeper, corner of Spring and Second streets, was a participant in the disgraceful row which occurred on the Santa Monica train a week ago last Sunday.

Chief Skinner and Officers Martin and Tyler were the witnesses for The People. A number of witnesses, some six or eight, were called to testify to the good reputation of the defendant for peace and quietness. The rather amusing feature came out in their cross-examination, when one after another, with one exception, in answer to the usual question, "What is your occupation?" said, "Saloon-keeper." The case was given to the jury, and they wrestled with it in a lively manner, as could be heard for two or three hours.

When they came in, unable to agree, they stood six to six all the way through. So William will have to try it again.

St. James.

St. James.

The development of Southern California seems to follow in the wake of the "Santa Fe Trail," as the "People's Line" is known in the East.

The magnificent foothill country has been opened, towns created and fortunes made by the investors in town property.

Now comes the first new town in the beautiful valley of the Santa Ana.

ST. JAMES.

It is located just at the outlet of the Santa Ana canyon, near the foothills, commanding a beautiful view of the Pacific Ocean.

Anaheim, four and a half miles, Orange, five miles, Santa Ana, nine miles.

It will naturally control the great business of the Santiago Valley, and there is no soil more fertile, no landscape more entertaining, no future more promising, than this first new town in the Santa Ana Valley.

The finest water power in the county is close to the townsite. The mill grinds day and night, with a force of 120-horse power.

The water for the town of St. James is there now, not "to be developed," but actually there.

The townsite is clean, level and perfect.

The maps will be out in a day or two, and the day of sale, which will be by auction, to the highest bidder, without reserve, will be named soon. The sale will positively occur this month.

Remember, the first purchasers always make money in our new towns.

POINTS OF THE MORNING'S NEWS.

Details of the Texas train-robbery. Murder and suicide at San Francisco. Split in the Clan-na-Gael Society. Announcement of freight rates on California fruits shipped to the East. Grace Leslie, the actress, killed in a railway accident. Jay Gould before the Pacific Railway Commission. Washington C. Depauw bequeaths $5,000,000 to education and charity. The czar entertained by his Cossack subjects. Editor O'Brien continues his agitation in Canada. The Tulare water troubles. The Louisville races. Extensive forest fires in Michigan. Verdict against a saloon-keeper at Grand Rapids, Mich. Base-ball games. The steamer Skidgon burned. Rain in California. The New Mexico Central Railway, an Atchison enterprise, incorporated. Report that Mexico wants Don Carlos to take part in her affairs. A veteran counterfeiter arrested at Elmhurst, N. Y. Louis Desmond convicted of manslaughter at Merced. Annual meeting of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company. General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Omaha. A duel at Paris. Prince Luitpold to be king of Bavaria. Blaine to advocate the Irish cause. Work resumed in the Haverhill factories. Jefferey-Lewis's receipts attached in Chicago. Henry George's party preparing for the next Presidential campaign. A Gold Hill, Nev., murderer sentenced.

A PARISIAN duel, in which some one actually got hurt, has the flavor of real news.

HENRY GEORGE is already grooming for 1888. Henry is too modest. He should call for the earth.

THE ITALIANS have concluded that an invasion of Abyssinia would be too much pork for their shilling.

A DEPUTY SHERIFF has his legal list on Jefferey-Lewis for debt. A new attachment is nothing to the numerous-headed J.-L.

THE coy and unsophisticated Jay Gould, upon the witness stand before the Pacific Railway Commission, is worth framing. Butter would petrify in his mouth.

DR. E. A. DE CAILLOL, of this city, has a column-and-a-half poem in the French paper, Le Progres, bewailing the use and abuse of the cigarette. There is a good vein of philosophy in the poem.

A VENTURA correspondent writes that there is an excitement there over a telegram from Los Angeles that the Santa Fé people are going to build a line from near here to San Buenaventura. There is no need of excitement. The story is nothing but wind.

It is said that the authorities have been obliged to close the Washington monument to visitors, to prevent its defacement by relic-hunting vandals. Already an irreparable injury has been done to the full interior. Portions of bas-relief figures have been broken away that cannot be replaced.

In a recent issue of the Bazaar, Mr. T. W. Higginson bewails "The Decrease of Privacy." The good man complains that "it almost becomes necessary to ask each stranger at a private gathering, 'Are you a reporter?' and each new visitor at one's door, 'Are you an interviewer?'" This is bad, but Mr. Higginson ought not to be so celebrated if he does not desire to be noticed.

A GOOD story is going the rounds concerning the newly-appointed postmaster at Buffalo, whose occupation is that of an undertaker. His appointment was urged on the ground that he would unite the Buffalo Democracy. One of the party leaders approached the President and strongly opposed the appointment of Sackett. "But he will unite the party in Buffalo," said Mr. Cleveland. "Yes," answered the disgruntled politician, "unite it in death. That's his business."

A SQUARE STATEMENT.

THE TIMES promised that, when the proper occasion arrived, it would speak on the much-misrepresented settlement of those libel suits. The time has now come, and we propose to make a full and frank statement of the transaction.

As the public know, the suits were brought against the Times-Mirror Company by Col. H. H. Boyce and associates, charging malicious libel, and assessing damages, in gross, at $350,000. Concerning the outcome of these suits, should they go to trial, we were not apprehensive, because libel suits in general do not stick. It might have taken a year of hard fighting in the courts, and the outlay of considerable money in fees, but that amounted to nothing.

But there were other and deeper questions involved. The men who constituted a majority of the Times directory, and who practically controlled its affairs, had no animus whatever against Col. Boyce and his associates, and objected to being drawn into a long legal controversy with them—a controversy especially which involved many people who had no part nor lot in the original quarrel.

Moreover, a certain stockholder and director of THE TIMES was a gentleman who did not maintain an active connection with the paper, but who is extensively engaged in other business.

Although this gentleman had taken no hand in any controversies of the paper, and although he certainly could have had no foreknowledge of the articles complained of, a factional fight was started against his business. This gentleman we count among our best and truest friends, and he is allied to one of the company by ties stronger than friendship. The extent of injury to be inflicted upon him by the guerrilla warfare which had been started could not be calculated. Probably by a hard-headed continuance in this controversy, for which we frankly confess we had no stomach, we would be doing all in our power to accomplish his financial ruin. Should we thus foolishly sacrifice our friend?

But this guerrilla conflict had still wider ramifications. One land company, which we certainly had no desire to injure, had been drawn into it and claimed that its prospects had been well nigh destroyed. Members of this company felt aggrieved and proposed retaliation in kind. Many of the residents of the section referred to believed that THE TIMES had willfully sought to knife them in order to gratify a personal spite against one man. They, too, would retaliate. A struggle more far-reaching and more destructive than can be adequately foretold was imminent. It sometimes happens that periods of the greatest financial prosperity and inflation of values are but the precursors of a crash. With a considerable element in the community arrayed against another considerable element, each side engaged in unsettling land values for the other, and all working toward each other's ruin, who shall say what they might not have accomplished?

We think the public will agree with us when we say it was time to call a halt. There was no alternative for this distasteful and uncalled-for conflict but to compromise. But everybody knows that Col. Otis is not a compromiser. He is an upright man and unswerving in his convictions of duty. He is a man, take him all in all, the latchets of whose shoes his decriers are not worthy to unlouse.

When the status of this case was laid before him in all its length and breadth, and when he conceded the point that he could not and would not compromise, he said: "If my presence here is going to jeopardize my friends and associates, I will step aside."

When Col. Otis did that he performed the most self-sacrificing, most magnanimous act of his life. Let it be understood, however, that he took this step of his own free will, knowing the full consequences of his course. He stated his willingness to do it, if his associates deemed it advisable, before any compromise had been effected.

Col. Otis retains his interests in the Times-Mirror Company, and we propose, so far as lies in our power, that his property rights shall be protected to the uttermost penny. A man who has made the sacrifice that he has for his friends should receive the highest consideration in return.

So much for the preliminaries of the compromise. As to the actual conditions of it, those are pretty well understood. They were based upon the arrangements for Col. Otis's retirement, which the members of the company had amicably adjusted between themselves; upon the payment of a certain sum in money and notes, to reimburse the opposite side for legal expenses incurred, and upon the publication in THE TIMES of the following, which is hereby presented according to agreement:

With reference to the attacks upon Col. H. H. Boyce heretofore made in the editorial columns of this paper, the present management desires to say that it knows of no evidence by which the charges there made against him can be sustained in any degree; on the contrary, it believes them to be entirely unfounded, and, in justice to him, and for the purpose of setting him right before this community, it disavows them collectively and specifically.

A Card.

With reference to the above the undersigned will make a statement within a few days, in answer to the charges of bad faith as to its non-appearance in the entire edition of the paper heretofore; and meantime asks a suspension of public opinion.

W. A. SPALDING.

So much for the cause of the compromise, the preliminaries of the compromise and the compromise itself, which is now fulfilled to the last letter of the law.

"There be more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamed of in thy philosophy."

A Matter of Business.

The Tribune of yesterday morning contained a malicious article, designed to injure the business standing of THE TIMES, of which the following is an excerpt:

"The last known act in the Times tragedy is the desertion of that paper by the McFarlands, father and son, who, on yesterday, declared they would give away their stock if they could not sell it, and finally succeeded in disposing of it to Otis's successor in the editorial chair, the unenviable Spalding."

The facts of the case are that Mr. Spalding yesterday purchased Mr. Dan McFarland's stock in the Times-Mirror Company, in accordance with an option secured some months ago; that he paid for this stock a premium of 50 per cent. above par value, and the stock is not now for sale.

Mr. Albert McFarland wishes to say that he has not sold his stock in this company, and it is not for sale.

There is now no TIMES-MIRROR stock upon the market, so far as known; and if there should be, it will be readily purchased at a premium of 50 per cent.

The New Civil Service Regulations.

There is a good deal of question in the minds of many in regard to what is really intended to be brought about by the new civil-service regulations. They are made under cover of "regulations for promotion in the classified departmental service." But the proposed examinations do not serve in any way to prove or disprove the efficiency of the faithful clerks now holding office, and discharging their duties so well that they are beyond the reach of any cause for dismissal on the ground of inefficiency. But these clerks must be subjected to these examinations upon a lot of general topics, in case an opening for promotion occurs, and, if they are unable to answer correctly how far it is to Japan, or what is the distance to the nearest fixed star, they not only fail of promotion, but lose also the positions which they already hold.

This is, apparently, one Democratic method for securing displaceable from office of efficient public servants, and one that will largely increase the power of discharge. It is Democracy giving practical exercise to the campaign cry, "Turn the rascals out," and when this is done they will see to it that the vacancies are not filled by any but dyed-in-the-wool Democrats. Under the original civil-service rules, no discharges were to be made of any who performed their duties promptly and efficiently. The tenure of office for such clerks was sure, and tended to create a feeling of stability and security. It also brought to the different departments the aid of experience, and of familiarity with the various duties to be performed, which is of such value to the civil service. But as far as possible, under the sanction of the new civil-service regulations, all this will be changed. Politics will be the test, and so-called "offensive partisanship" will make every clerk, no matter how great his qualifications for discharging the duties of his office, a target for Democratic guerrillas in their raid for office.

Full of the Great Boom.

The San Francisco Chronicle is apparently just waking up to the true condition of things here in Southern California, and has decided to let the truth be told, even if it diverts every tenderfoot from the Northern Citrus Belt, and sends him to Los Angeles, where booms are springing up like weeds. In one of its side departments it says:

"I met a friend who has just returned from the southern country, and who is full of the great boom. He says he could not imagine anything like it. But he says that at the next election they are going to appoint a new official—a public kicker—as everybody he met was kicking himself because he missed buying a lot at $500,000 and selling it at $50,000. He says they're all black and blue, metaphorically, from that exercise."

EDITOR O'BRIEN continues to have a circus in Toronto. His audiences punctuate his oratory with "mingled groans and cheers." Meantime, lovers of fair play, who didn't care a snap about O'Brien before, are suddenly interested in the man whom ruffians would deprive of the right of free speech.

The Thirteen Club of New York has invited thirteen undertakers to partake of its hospitality on May 13th.

TRAIN ROBBERY.

Later Accounts of Their Work in Texas.

They Hold Up a Missouri Pacific Train and Secure $4000.

Two Thousand People Fighting Forest Fires in Michigan.

Grace Leslie, the Actress, Killed in a Railway Accident—Capture of a Veteran Counterfeiter—Verdict Against a Saloon-keeper Whose Victim Committed Murder.

By Telegram to THE TIMES.

GALVESTON (Tex.), May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] The News San Antonio special says: "The north-bound express, on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, which left this city at 7 o'clock last evening, encountered a gang of train-robbers about 10 o'clock, at McNeill Station, twelve miles north of Austin. As the train slowed up at the station, the robbers, to the number of twelve or fifteen, fired several volleys to intimidate the passengers. The train was held up for nearly half an hour, after which it was allowed to proceed.

The doors of the express car were forced open, and about $4000 was taken. The messengers were compelled to throw up their hands, and were ordered to hand over the cash and registered packages.

Postal Clerk Spaulding says that he distinctly heard the order given by the leader, 'Don't touch any of the passengers, and don't shoot any of our own men.' The messengers also say that he believes the men were green hands in the business.

FIGHTING FIRE.

Forest Conflagrations Raging Fiercely in Michigan.

MARQUETTE (Mich.), May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] Forest fires are still raging everywhere. The smoke is dense. No casualties are reported, but thousands of dollars of damage have been done. From all quarters come reports of heavy damages. Owing to the telegraph poles being burned, full reports are not possible. Nothing definite has been learned from Camp No. 3, where the big fire raged last night. The wind is light and the forest dry. There are fears of a general conflagration. Fully 2000 people are fighting fires on the peninsula today, and a repetition of the awful Peshtat fire is feared. Fire appears to be raging everywhere.

The Indians at Camp No. 3, who were surrounded by fire last night, succeeded in saving their lives, but lost the camp. Particulars of their heroic fight cannot be learned. Several camps on the extension were destroyed. At noon today the fires were approaching the Webster mine, and six saw mills at various places are in imminent danger.

At Negaunee, Ishpeming and Michigamme the smoke is suffocating, and thousands of dollars' worth of hard-wood timber and pine are destroyed. Marquette, Algerbarga, Houghton and Kenewene counties are being swept by fire. Fires are within two miles of Ishpeming, but no danger is anticipated at that place.

JUST VERDICT.

A Saloon Man to Pay Heavily for His Victim's Death.

GRAND RAPIDS (Mich.), May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] John Boyd, a butcher of Rockford, one morning last summer, deliberately murdered W. B. Johnson. Boyd was half-crazed with liquor at the time. He made no attempt to escape. He was convicted of murder and sentenced to prison for life, leaving wife and four children, the youngest but 3 days old. Annie Boyd, the wife of the murderer, sued Christopher Post, a saloonist of Rockford, for selling her husband liquor, claiming $20,000. A verdict was rendered this morning giving the woman $5000. The case will probably be appealed. Another case of the same character, where the woman's husband was killed in a row and the murderer acquitted, is pending.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

A King Among Counterfeiters Comes to Grief.

ELMHURST (N. Y.), May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] Abner G. Cody, one of the most expert passers of counterfeit money in the United States, has been arrested at Painted Post. Cody is 72 years old. For a number of years he had his headquarters in Michigan. He had in his possession when arrested $241 in counterfeit gold coin, and a number of fine dies. He has been in the business since he was 16 years old. The Government officers have been hunting him for ten years without success. He has been from Maine to California, working off bogus money.

AN ACTRESS KILLED.

Grace Leslie the Victim of a Railway Accident.

DENVER (Colo.), May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] A sleeper in the Denver and Rio Grande Salt Lake express was derailed, near Salida, at 5 this morning. Grace Leslie, the leading lady of Kate Castleton's troupe, was instantly killed. Dr. George Cox received a severe scalp wound, and Pullman Conductor Aubrey was hurt on the head and hip. The wounded were taken to the company's hospital at Salida. The sleeper was badly demolished.

A Horrible Death.

SILVER CITY (Idaho), May 19.—On the 15th inst., at Jordan Valley, Ore., distant twenty-five miles from Silver City, Paul S. Gordos, a 40-year-old man, with a horrible death, having had his foot caught in the spring of a buckboard to which was attached a span of horses, which ran five miles before they were caught, when the mutilated body was found beneath the buckboard.

Five Millions to Charity.

NEW ALBANY (Ind.), May 19.—The will of Washington C. Depauw was probated today. It bequeaths $3,000,000 to his family and the residue of his estate, estimated at $5,000,000, is devoted to benevolent and educational purposes, including a bequest of $1,025,000 to Depauw University.

Florida's New Senator.

TALLAHASSEE (Fla.), May 19.—The joint session of the Legislature formally elected Samuel Pasco United States Senator today.

Huntington Goes to Europe.

NEW YORK, May 19.—C. P. Huntington and family left for Europe yesterday. They will be absent about two months.

Kansas City is to have a new $300,000 hotel to take the place of the old Lindell. The new house will bear the same name.

HENRY GEORGE.

His Followers Preparing for the Presidential Campaign.

NEW YORK, May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] The Commercial Advertiser, this afternoon, publishes the following: "It is already stated, on very good authority, that Henry George's Labor party has already begun to prepare for the fall campaign. The district leaders, with their assistants, are making a house-to-house canvass in the tenement districts, and are said to be swelling their ranks from lukewarm Democrats. It has been intimated that the object of the whole affair is to swell the Labor vote at the approaching election to such an extent that George can then be in such a position as to make a probable deal with Blaine in the Presidential election of 1888. George, this morning, said: 'You can authoritatively deny that there is any deal or agreement, either past, pending or to be made in future, between Blaine and myself. I am opposed to Blaine. He represents all I have been fighting for years, including monopoly and the worst form of capitalistic power.' 'Will there be a representative candidate of your party in 1888?' 'It is strongly probable that there will,' answered George."

RAILWAY MATTERS.

Gould Again Testifies About Union Pacific—Annual Meeting of the A. and P. Company—Another Atchison Scheme.

By Telegram to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] When the Pacific Railway Commission got to work this morning Jay Gould resumed the witness stand, and the inquiry was continued by Commissioner Anderson. Mr. Littler asked Gould's opinion with reference to the Interstate Commerce Bill.

Gould said: "There is a great deal of good and some bad in it. I haven't asked the commission for any change yet. I should prefer to wait a year or two before giving any definite opinion."

In reply to Judge Dillon's question Gould said: "The acquisition of the Denver and South Park road was a political action on the part of the Union Pacific, and brought me no great personal profit. Kansas Pacific stock jumped up rapidly, as it leaked out that I was buying largely. I did it to protect my interest in the Union Pacific, and to furnish a southern outlet and to affect the market. As soon as the Iowa roads were secured we turned the traffic over to the southern road and made money by the transaction. Of course I want to explain to the commission my motives in making these large purchases. I have nothing to conceal. At present I have no interest in the Union Pacific. While I was connected with it the company built several branch lines to act as feeders. No individual made any profit out of the building of these roads, the company building them at actual cost. As regards the central branch, the Kansas Central and St. Joe and Western roads, I am willing to take them off the Union Pacific's books at the price I paid for them at the time of the consolidation. Kansas Pacific was more valuable property than the Union Pacific. It was not put into the consolidation at too high a value. The securities of the Government were increased by the consolidation, and I cannot conceive how the consolidation was in any way injurious to the Government's interest."

In reply to ex-Gov. Farrison's question as to why he retired from the management of the Union Pacific, Gould answered: "I made up my mind that it would be better to have a large number interested in the road than to have people who could own it. I was also partially actuated by the undesirability of having the Government for a partner. When the road was in the rut I could have made any sort of bargain with the Government. When it had been converted into a paying property, thus increasing the Government's security, the Government stepped in and attacked it. It is difficult to predict the future of the Union Pacific."

SAN DIEGO HARBOR.

Babcock & Story Arrested for "Obstructing" It. [San Diego Sun.]

Warrants for the arrest of E. S. Babcock, Jr., his partner, H. L. Story, and all their workmen employed on the extension of the H-street wharf, about which so much controversy has ensued, were issued from Recorder C. F. Monroe's court this morning, on complaint of ex-City Trustee William Carlson. The complaint charges them with violation of section 613 of the Penal Code of the State of California, in obstructing the navigation of the harbor of San Diego. On being arrested and arraigned before Recorder Monroe, a plea of not guilty was entered. After exacting a promise from defendants that work would be suspended until after their examination, they were released on their own recognizance. The case will come up next Friday, at 10 o'clock a.m., Maj. Levi Chase appearing as counsel for the defense.

Work has therefore been stopped for the present. Flies have now been driven from extending the original wharf ninety feet toward the main channel. The piles have been planked about half the distance out, leaving forty feet yet to be covered. Mr. Carlson claims that Messrs. Babcock & Story have encroached twenty-six feet on the main channel of the harbor, and in so doing have violated the section of the Penal Code referred to in the foregoing.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] Philip Keyenberg, a cabinet-maker, aged 26, shot and killed Mary Fessler, aged 23, this afternoon, and then shot and killed himself. Miss Fessler attended church this forenoon, and from there went to visit a lady friend in Larkin place, near O'Farrell street. Keyenberg, who had followed her to the church, a fact she was unaware of, also followed her to the house of her friend. As the door of the house was opened, Keyenberg drew a revolver and fired two shots at the unsuspecting girl, who was struck in the back by the first bullet, and in the face by the second. She fell and almost immediately expired. Keyenberg then turned the pistol to his forehead and blew his brains out. Miss Fessler had been engaged to marry Keyenberg, but the engagement had been broken off, and it was reported that she was to marry another, Jeremy, caused by the above facts, is believed to be the cause of the tragedy.

FREIGHTS ON RAIL.

The Rates Fixed for Shipments from California to the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] Telegraphic advices received today from Chicago state that the following rates have been made for the transportation of fruits to the East: From Sacramento to the Missouri River, $347.50 per car of ten tons; to Chicago from Sacramento, $400 per car of ten tons. It is probable that a like arrangement for special train service can be made to Buffalo or New York. The Southern Pacific Company will reserve the right to determine the number of cars in excess of ten to be taken in any one train, and will have the right to fill up the train to the working capacity of the engine with freight other than fruit. Shipments which it is desired to have arrive at destination within the time of passenger trains between Sacramento and destination, say at Chicago or Missouri River, must be loaded in cars and ready to start from Sacramento to the concentrating point at least three or four hours before the leaving time of the passenger train of the same date at Sacramento.

If there is no damage done by taking water out in ditches, he will be very lenient with the companies. It is reported that he said he would raise the injunction which is now several ditches.

LIVED NEARLY 102 YEARS.

Death of an Ancient Democrat Who Voted for Madison and Cleveland.

(Continued from page 1.) The oldest man in Stephenson county, if not in Illinois, died last evening at his home, about seventeen miles northwest of Freeport, in Oneida township. Had he lived until July 29th, Mr. Smith would have been 102 years old. He was born in Guilford county, North Carolina. In 1815 he moved to Highland county, Ohio, and from there came to this county in 1846, and has resided here ever since. When about 20 years old he was married to Dorcas McDaniell in his native county. She bore him twelve children, all of whom but one grew to manhood and womanhood. Two years ago his 100th birthday anniversary was celebrated with great pomp, there being present perhaps 3000 people. When in his younger days he enjoyed fishing and hunting exceedingly, but when it came time for him to get down to business he learned the blacksmith trade, which he followed for some time. The greater part of his life was devoted to farming. With the exception of chewing tobacco, Mr. Smith was a most temperate man all his life. He never drank any alcohol, but had always been an attentive and careful reader of the Bible, and about six years ago was baptised. He cast his first Presidential vote for James Madison, and his last for Grover Cleveland, and had always been a Democrat. He never rode on a railroad train and never ate a meal in a hotel. Deceased had a limited education in the German language, having been of German descent.

New Bridge for San Bernardino.

[San Bernardino Index.] Plans for the 230-foot bridge on Third street, between B and A streets, have been prepared, and show that the bridge will be a fine structure. It will have a footpath on each side, protected by good railings, and in the center will be a double roadway. The floor of the bridge will be double, the first floor running diagonally one way and the upper floor running diagonally the opposite, thus making a solid, substantial bed. The center of the bridge is a span forty feet long, which will be self-supporting and well braced; the balance of the bridge will be supported by piles. When built it will be a good improvement for that street and will build up the east end of the town.

A Wise Suggestion.

The New York Tribune sarcastically suggests that President Cleveland, instead of beginning the practice of law when he retires from public life (March 4, 1889, of course), devote himself to turning Mr. Lamont's country of Calhoun into a tax-book for use in the New England public schools. This is the blindest insult yet offered the present Administration.

CLAN-NA-GAEL.

The Powerful Irish Society Goes to Pieces.

Members Charged with Treason, Selling Secrets of the Order, and Furnishing the Recent Disclosures Made by the London "Times."

A Prominent Member of the Organization Charged with Appropriating $40,000 of the "Revolutionary Fund"—The Opposing Factions Form Rival Societies.

By Telegram to The Times.

NEW YORK, May 19.—[By the Associated Press.] The New York Mail and Express says: "The Clan-na-Gael Society, which numbers among its members two United States Senators, the Governors of several States, Mayors by the dozen, as well as Congressmen and others of national importance, is completely disrupted, and the fight among the classes has become so bitter that certain members have been openly charged with selling the secrets of the order to the British government, and are alleged to have been the means of supplying information to the London Times. The Clan-na-Gael Society was formed in the United States after the abortive revolution in Ireland in 1867. Camps were organized in every city of the United States, and in every town of consequence. Brooklyn has nearly a dozen camps, with memberships as high as 2800. New York has more. Philadelphia next, then Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Troy, Buffalo, Albany, San Francisco, New Haven, Boston, Lowell, Providence, Scranton and Hooch Falls.

Powderly was one of the chiefs when Mayor Sanborn the society was outlawed. The object is to free Ireland. Today the society is not only split in halves, but one of the members, said to reside in New Haven, is charged with appropriating $40,000 from the revolutionary funds, and other members of the supreme executive board are taxed with living on assessments drawn from the members. Open warfare has been instituted between the leaders, and the camps are divided into almost equal factions, the seceders taking with them the name, Clan-na-Gael and the camps remaining in the original order, adopting another name. Patrick Egan, of Leominster, Neb., Alexander Sullivan, of Chicago, Col. Mitchell Boland, of Louisville, and Reynolds, of New Haven, form the leaders of the original faction, while John Devoy, William H. Wallace, of New York, and J. P. Broadway, are leading men in the new Clan-na-Gael.

Members wondered where the money was going to which they contributed. According to the constitution they were not allowed to ask. Members were only supposed to know local officers. Alexander Sullivan and Patrick Egan secured the expulsion of John Devoy and his followers. Open charges of robbery were then made. It was alleged that British spies had gained a foothold in the order. The result was that a majority of the camps refused the order to turn over 50 per cent. of their receipts to the Treasurer. Some of these camps were promptly expelled. Others did not wait for expulsion, but, disregarding their oaths, withdrew from the order. The Clan-na-Gael proposes to drive Alexander Sullivan, Patrick Egan and their followers out of all Irish societies. They will be placed upon the black list.

Dr. Betts, a leading Protestant clergyman of the West, local secretary located at St. Louis, is leader of one of the factions. He is bitterly denounced by some persons in New York, who claim to know where the London Times got its information.

ONE OF BRAZIL'S AFFLICTIONS.

A Terrible Plague of Mice with Extraordinary Appetites.

[Science.] In the colony of Lourance, Brazil, in the months of May and June, 1876, mice suddenly appeared in enormous numbers. They invaded the grain fields in such large numbers that the corn seemed literally alive with them, destroying in a few days everything that was edible, and where, but a short time before, bushels of grain might have been harvested, not an ear remained, and the noise produced by their nibbling and climbing was audible for a considerable distance. After the corn fields were devastated, the potatoes next received their attention. Only the largest were eaten in the ground; such as were transportable were carried away and hidden in hollow retreats for future use. Gourds and pumpkins, even the hardest, were gnawed through and eaten. Of green food, such as clover, oats, barley, not a leaf was left standing; even weeds were cut down and the inner parts eaten out.

In the house the struggle for existence of these long-tailed invaders was truly amazing. In many of the dwellings hundreds were killed in a single day. The cats, however, contributed but little aid in fighting such a plague, for not only were many of the rats so large that it would have been an unequal contest, but by their great number they drove the cats actually from the houses and to return until the plague was passed. Nothing, except what was composed of iron, stone or glass was spared from their destructiveness. Furniture, clothes, hats, books—everything—bore the traces of their teeth. They gnawed the boots of the cows and horses in the stables, literally ate up fatted hogs, and often bit away the hair of persons during sleep. They penetrated all apartments and even the very throats of the sick and dying. Ditches that were dug about granaries did not suffice; the mice would climb over each other and thus reach the top.

The foregoing account of one occurrence in Lourance will suffice to show to what an extent the plague reached. The same province had suffered similarly in 1843 and 1863, and in all probability will again in 1888. Similar plagues, though far less in extent, have occurred in Europe, in which the field-mice unaccountably appeared in greatly increased numbers. One may well think what would be the results were these little, almost insignificant creatures everywhere in such wise to take the ascendancy. When one considers that on an average of every one or two months from five to eight young are born, and that these young become mature in a few months themselves, he will be surprised to know that a single pair of common field mice, in the course of a single summer, would increase to 23,000 rodents. Could all the conditions which now keep them in check be removed, every living thing on earth would be consumed in half a dozen years.

A Ridiculous Proposition.

A few days ago the cable, among other things, conveyed to the intelligence that a project had been started in England by a committee of ladies to raise a quarter of a million dollars or more by public subscription to be presented to the Queen as a cash jubilee token of the loyalty and affections of her female subjects toward her. According to the dispatches the committee had already gathered in more than half the checkered amount required, and the rest was coming in, it was stated, at an average rate of $5000 per day.

As an illustration of the very absurdity of any pecuniary donation to the royal family of England, it will be as interesting as astonishing to look over what it already draws from the marrow of the people. The following is what is called the "civil list"—the various amounts paid to the sovereign and her family annually out of the public purse:

The Queen, treasury allowance.....	$1,925,000
The Queen, revenue of Duchy of Lancaster, usually.....	250,000
Prince of Wales, treasury allowance.....	200,000
Prince's revenue of Duchy of Cornwall, usually.....	325,000
Princess of Wales.....	50,000
Duke of Edinburgh, second son.....	75,000
Duke of Connaught, third son.....	75,000
Crown-Princess Frederick William, of Germany, eldest daughter.....	40,000
Princess Christian, of Schleswig-Holstein, third daughter.....	30,000
Princess Louise, fourth daughter.....	30,000
Princess Beatrice, fifth and youngest daughter.....	30,000
Total.....	$2,650,000

This amount is paid to the members of the reigning family alone, who are living, out of the public funds of the government, and, though each item is immense, it does not at all represent the whole amount they receive. In addition to the above, the three sons draw very large salaries annually as "colonels," "generals," "commanders," and the like, in the army and navy.

It will be seen that the Queen gets $3,175,000 for her share every year, the Prince and Princess of Wales about $700,000, between treasury allowances and salaries, and the other two sons not less than $100,000 each. The Duke of Cambridge, grandson of Adolph, sixth and youngest son of George III, gets a fabulous salary as commander-in-chief of the British army, and also as the people's pocket, like the reigning family, to the tune of $60,000 annually. The commandship of the army, however, let it be said for decency's sake, he only holds nominally in order to secure its emoluments. Among the other relatives living on the public purse is the Duchess of Cambridge, widow of the late Duke of Cumberland, who gets $30,000; Princess Teck, of Wurtemberg, who has $25,000, and the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, who gets $15,000, making in all about $4,000,000, for which the poorest in the United Kingdom are taxed every year to support the Queen in royal style and her family and immediate relatives in idleness.

CLAREMONT.

Notes of Progress From a Lively Young Town.
Several carloads of lumber and a gang of workmen arrived last Monday, and the construction of the new hotel—the Manchester—was commenced at once. It occupies a beautiful site on the summit of Fullerton Heights, and overlooks all the Pomona Valley. The building, when finished, will cost $30,000.

W. H. Holabird is building an elegant residence on the corner of Fifth and Alexander avenues. It is a Swiss cottage, a story and a half high, and will cost $4000.

C. H. Rutherford has built a neat real-estate office on Tremont avenue, and James T. Taylor has erected another on Alexander avenue.

A box car has been placed on the switch to serve as a temporary telegraph and ticket office until the new depot is finished. The contract has been let for the latter.

The Claremont Water Company now have two flowing wells on Indian Hill, a half a mile north of town.

The work of street-grading is being pushed actively.

Harry Kuhn, of Pomona, will start a restaurant here shortly to accommodate the army of workers and the newcomers, who are fast flocking in.

An excursion from Los Angeles, to let the city people enjoy a picnic among the oak and sycamore groves of Claremont, is among the things on tap.

The Collegiate College has been located on the Scanlon mesa, about two miles northwest of Claremont. The elevation is about 2000 feet above sea-level, on one of the foothills of Old Baldy. From this eminence a magnificent view can be obtained of all the great San Bernardino basin to the east, and the San Gabriel Valley to the west. Abundance of pure air and water abound. The college will cost a total bonus in lands, in cash, of about $150,000. H. A. Palmer, the enterprising president of the Pomona Land and Water Company, has been the chief agent in procuring this educational establishment here.

BASE-BALL.

The Southern California League an Assured Fact.

An enthusiastic meeting of the lovers of the national game was held at the office of Peck & Ruggles yesterday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a Southern California base-ball league.

The meeting was called to order by Charles S. Ruggles, and the following officers elected: Charles S. Ruggles, president; D. J. Tobin, vice-president; Charles W. Stearns, treasurer; George S. Turner, secretary.

The following committees were appointed: On bylaws and constitution, Conn. Ruggles, Stearns and Turner; on schedule, Monroe and Crawford.

It was decided that the league consist of four clubs, as follows: Peck & Ruggles, E. E. Conn, manager; Black Diamonds, C. W. Stearns, manager; D. J. Tobin, of Santa Monica, George D. Johnson, manager; and the Los Angeles Club, George S. Turner, manager.

Several agreements were entered into between the different managers, who will immediately go to work signing their different players. It is the intention of the managers to sign the strongest club possible. The league will have professional umpires, and will be conducted as all leagues in the East. A suitable emblem is being made, which will be presented to the club winning the championship.

The Los Angeles and Peck & Ruggles nines will play an exhibition game on the Sixth-street grounds next Sunday, at 2 p. m. A full brass band will be in attendance. The regular meetings of the league will be held every Tuesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, at the office of Peck & Ruggles, 230 North Main street.

HOW HE DOES IT.

The Way an Angeleno Lives Very Cheaply.

Yesterday a San Francisco man was standing on the corner of Temple and Spring streets, talking to several Los Angeles gentlemen about cheap living.

"Why," said he, "one can get a good meal in San Francisco for 15 cents. It is by far the cheapest eating-place in the world."

"Fifteen cents a meal?" remarked one of the crowd. "That is nothing. I can live on 10 cents a week in this city, and I'll bet there is not another city in the world where a person can live on such a small sum."

The San Francisco man was staggered, and for a moment he could not open his mouth, for he saw that the Los Angeles man was in dead earnest.

"How—how do you do it?" he finally gasped.

"Well, I'll tell you. I have a friend here who is a very high liver. I take dinner with him every Sunday, and I eat enough to last me until Wednesday."

"And then?"

"There is nothing that I dislike more than tripe. I go to the market Wednesday evening and buy 10 cents' worth of tripe, and I make myself so sick that I don't want to eat again until Sunday. Sabe?"

The San Francisco man invited the crowd to "smile."

MORE GRANITE.

An Immense Quarry at the Devil's Gate.

John Hall, the well-known architect, some time ago discovered what hundreds of others had had abundant opportunity to discover—namely, that the vast mass of rock at the Devil's Gate, in the Arroyo Seco, is a mountain of granite of the most valuable description. It is inexhaustible in quantity and of the finest quality, and is where it can be quarried with the utmost ease. Having called the attention of capital to this bonanza, Mr. Hall has leased his interest in it. A company has been formed, and a lot of expensive machinery has already been ordered, with which the quarry will be developed at once. Experts who have examined the quarry are surprised at its promise.

How Philanthropists Were Robbed of a Chance to Do Good.

The girl Maud Miller, who was taken out of a room in the Sensitive block a few nights ago by Officer Dillon, is in charge of Mrs. Watson, and will be sent to the Boys and Girls Aid Society of San Francisco, tomorrow, by steamer.

The organ-grinder's daughter was to have been sent up also, but Justice Austin allowed the old man to go without bail and they did not show up in court yesterday morning at the hour set for his trial. The chances are that they walked out of town early yesterday morning. The old miser walks from town and makes the girl carry a heavy package. Mrs. Watson was very much put out on account of the way in which the old man escaped.

AN INJUDICIOUS JAP.

He Tackles American Base Games to His Sorrow.

The little Jap, who thought he was a bad gambler, at the races yesterday, and kicked up several rows because he lost his money, was run in last night for being drunk and disorderly. When he became so unruly at the race track that his friends could do nothing with him, Deputy Constable Sulter handcuffed him and conducted him outside of the grounds and told him to skip. He did skip, but he ran into the embrace of a lot of bad whisky, and last night he was arrested for being drunk and disorderly. He was locked up and will have a chance to tell Justice Austin how he became an American gambler for one day.

WHITMAN'S NEW REBOUND PLUNGER

DOUBLE-ACTING. CONTINUOUS.

HAY, STRAW, & WOOL PRESS

READ THE FOLLOWING:

Whitman Agricultural Co., St. Louis, Mo. to E. CASON, San Diego Co., Cal., Aug. 1, 1935.

"Improved Whitman's Hay Press" this season, in 1822 press, in about two months' running. We have pressed from eight to fourteen tons a day in grass hay; from eight to ten tons a day with case. We have pressed in grain hay eight tons in 48 hours, just to see what the press would do. In grain hay the bales run from 180 to 240 pounds. We have pressed 100 pounds with ten feeds, which the Dederick press cannot do, because their feed-box is not so large as ours. The bales made by our Whitman press are much smoother and more slightly than bales made by the Dederick press. We have pressed twenty bales an hour, averaging 150 pounds to the bale, in wild oats hay. We pressed hay this year upon the same ranch where the Dederick Over Creek press baled hay. The bales weighed 84 to 125 pounds; our bales weighed 135 to 190 pounds. In testimony that the foregoing statement is true, the undersigned crew running the "Whitman Improved Perpetual Hay Press" belonging to Gregg Bros., El Cajon, San Diego county, Cal., have hereto set our hands and seal the day and date first above written. BUSINESS.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES.
Los Angeles, Thursday, May 19.
The market for Produce is generally higher, and Butter, Eggs, and Cheese have advanced over last week's quotations. Poultry is somewhat lower.

Hay is quoted lower. The market in San Francisco is reported by George Morrow & Co. as follows:

"Receipts for the week, 2356 tons. Efforts are making in some quarters to get rid of Hay before June 1st, when the storage expires. Dealers are very cautious about buying under the circumstances. The result is a very dull market, at slightly reduced rates."

Advices from the East report considerable activity in Coffee of late. Prices have fluctuated considerably, but the result has been an advance. Some dealers expect a break in prices soon, while others expect to realize still higher prices. Market was weaker.

The following dispatch gives the situation in the Tea trade:

"Shanghai, May 19.—The Tea business, which was suspended for a week by the Han Kow guild on account of the low prices offered by foreign buyers, has been resumed, a compromise having been effected with the guild. Only the tea crop will be offered for sale this year."

Reports from San Francisco say that the Fruit market is well supplied. Oranges continue weak, and prices, although no lower, show a downward inclination. Choice Riverside are not plentiful. Limes and Lemons are in good supply.

The market for California Fruits in Chicago is summed up in the following:

"Chicago, May 19.—Oranges are easy. The supply on hand is good, and there is a fair demand for choice fruit, other grades being kept in the background. The following are the ruling quotations: Bright Riverside, good to fancy, $3 to $4; Santa Anna, $2.50 to $3.50; St. Michael paper, $2 to $3; Orange, $2.50 to $3.75; Los Angeles, $2.50 to $3.75; Navel Oranges, according to quality, $3 to $4.50; San Gabriel, $2.50 to $3; Blood Oranges, fancy, $4 to $5; Culls, $2 to $3. California Cherries are coming forward more freely. They are very nice and meet with a fair sale. Boxes of ten pounds are sold at $3 to $3.50 for black Tartarys, at $3.50 to $4 for Oxbart and fine white Sweet Southern. Sour Cherries are rather common and slow of sale and easy. They range from $1.50 to $2 for twenty-four quart cases, according to quality. Lemons are in good supply and easy at $3 to $4."

Stocks and Bonds.
By Telegraph to The Times.

New York, May 19.—Money on call, easy, at 4 1/2%; 60-day bills, 4 1/2%; closing at 4 1/2%.

Prime mercantile paper, 5 1/2%. Sterling exchange, 4 1/2%; and unsettled at 4 1/2% for 60-day bills; 4 1/2% for demand. The sentiment on the street today was decidedly adverse to any further advance in stocks, and while there was a good deal of character to affect the market considerably, free realizations and sales for short account, aided by a vigorous reaction by the bears, wherever a soft spot was discovered, brought about a moderate reaction throughout the entire list. The opening was moderately active, most of the stocks showing slight advances over last evening's closing prices. A drive was made at the close, but by extreme activity, quotations were depressed, fractions ranging up to 1/2 percent in the first half-hour, the decline being caused by extreme activity. A rally occurred after that time, in which Western Union was prominent, but considerable irregularity was developed, and transactions became smaller in volume. The tone, however, was heavy until after 12 o'clock, when a reaction occurred, and the market was measured by small fractions. In the last hour the decline was renewed with force, and was only checked at 4 1/2% by a very active, but heavy at near the lowest of the day.

Governments were dull and steady.

MANSLAUGHTER.

SYLVESTER DURON'S CRIME FINDS HIM OUT.

The Jury Finds Him Guilty of a Homicide Committed Four Years Ago—The Closing Evidence—Testimony of Witnesses.

The trial of Sylvester Duron, on the charge of murder, was continued in Judge Cheney's court yesterday. The chief aim of the defense was self-defense and good character. The first witness called and sworn was

BERNARDINO MACHADO.
I live in this county and know Francisco Cota, who testified in this case yesterday. Cota did not tell me last week that the deceased told him, five or six days after he was hurt, that he had caught a cold in his head, but he did say that he saw Manuel walking around five or six days after he received his injuries. I have known the defendant ten or twelve years, and he has been in my employ for five or six years, and his reputation for peace and quietness has always been good.

J. SINES
sworn: I have resided in Ballona, fifteen years and am a merchant there. I have known the defendant for four or five years, and his general reputation for peace and quietness has always been good.

JOSE LUGO
sworn, and testified to defendant's good reputation for peace and quietness.
AUGUSTINE COTA
called: Denied having had any conversation with Jesus Lugo on the case.

M. NICOLAI
sworn, and testified to the good reputation of defendant for peace and quietness.
J. SAUVEUR same evidence.

JAMES HANES
sworn: I reside at Temecula, in San Diego county. I was at the home of Francisco Cota last Monday, and had a conversation with him. [Conversation excluded.] The defendant, being put upon the stand, pleaded self-defense; that the old man came at him without any provocation, and that he tried to get out of the way and, finally, in defending himself, hit deceased with a board.

The case was argued and submitted to the jury, who, after being out about ten minutes, brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter.

WHY WE GROW GRAY.

Some Tribulations of a Railroad Ticket Agent.
Some strange sights may be witnessed at the new depot almost any afternoon; but the most desirable seat for this matinee of all nations is a stand next to the ticket office, where you can hear the conversation between the agent and his various customers. Any person who will take the trouble to stand by the window two hours must come to the conclusion that a minstrel show is a very flat, stale and unprofitable concern in comparison with the ticket-office show. If one does not laugh until both sides are fit companions to a bull, then it is because one is afraid of being whipped by the straight-faced actors, who use the ticket agent for an interlocutor. This office is presided over by a clever young man named Frank Smith, and he has a face that would put Billie Emerson's most accomplished middleman to shame. Smith looks much younger than he really is. He has been in the railroad ticket-selling business for years, and can answer the most silly question that the human tongue can frame, without cracking a smile, even on one side of his face. A Times reporter yesterday stood by the window and jotted down a few such questions as:

"I say, there are two trains to Santa Monica today, ain't there, agent?"
"Yes; one in the morning and the other one at 4:50 p.m."

"Will it be any trouble for you to tell me which one will get there first?" No, reader, the questioner was not a wag, who wanted to joke with the agent. The questions were put by a well-dressed lady, who looked as if she might be the mother of six or seven children. She was in dead earnest, and had the agent refused to answer her questions she would have reported him.

A gentleman, who had the appearance of being a banker, rushed up to the window, and in a very anxious tone of voice, said: "That San Diego train will leave in an hour, will it not?"

Agent—"Yes, sir."
Banker—"Do you suppose it will start any sooner if I take my seat now?"
A lady of fashion drove up in a private carriage, and was assisted to alight by a liveried coachman.

"Do you sell tickets here?" she asked.
Agent—"Yes, madam."

Lady—"Well, my daughter sailed from Europe the other day, and I want to know just what day she will arrive in Los Angeles."

When the agent informed her that it would be impossible for him to tell, she threatened to have him discharged as soon as she saw Col. Hewitt.

A young man, who was evidently a stranger in the city, bashfully approached the window, and after coughing two or three times, lisped:

"I'm awfully lonesome out here, don't chew know?"
Agent—"Is that so?"

Young man—"Yes, and I came all the way down here to get a few dozen letters of introduction to young ladies." The agent looked blankly at a fly on the opposite wall and said nothing. The young man became angry, and in an injured tone of voice ejaculated:

"Why in thunder don't you hurry up with those letters? Do you think I have come all the way out here to be slighted by a common ticket agent?" And the agent had hard work to convince him that he was not in the marriage-bureau business.

An old woman, who had been sitting in the waiting-room eight hours, next sidled up to the window. She was mad, and the agent braced himself for the contest as she ran her watery eyes over his face.

"Young man, you have lied to me. When I bought this ticket you said the train would start at 5 o'clock, and I have been here all day. What do you mean by such conduct?"

"It is only 4 o'clock now, and if you will wait another hour your train will pull out."

"But I can't wait any longer, and if you don't have that train here in five minutes I'll not go at all."

And so it went on all day. Yet some people wonder why we grow gray.

Money Is No Object.

The lives of your children are of priceless value. Every child is subject to sudden attacks of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is always alarming and often fatal. The only rational plan is to be provided at all times with the safest and surest remedy, and promptly treat the disorder in its first stages, and before the vitality becomes exhausted. Unexpected delays so often occur in sending for a physician or medicine, especially during the night or from a distance, that no one can afford to risk such uncertainties when life depends upon promptness. Keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand for instant use. It is made for bowels complaint only and is unquestionably the most reliable medicine ever brought into general use. The price is no object compared with its value in saving life. Sold by C. H. Hancock, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

For fear of losing a day's work, many persons put off taking physio until Saturday. The better plan is to not delay, but take it as soon as needed; it may save the life of a sick person. If you want the most benefit from the least amount of physio, without causing any inconvenience, loss of appetite or rest, take St. Patrick's Pills. Their action on the liver and bowels are thorough. They give a freshness, tone and vigor to the whole system, and act in harmony with nature. Sold by C. H. Hancock, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

CATARRH!

THROAT DISEASES, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, CONSUMPTION,

Together with diseases of the EYE, EAR AND HEART, Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D., M. C. P. S. O., No. 275 North Main Street, A few doors south of the new postoffice, Los Angeles, Cal.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by DR. WILLIAMS.

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.
Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and yet he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructs the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath becomes upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work.

Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in expressing his confidence about it, say "I will wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years, and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts that he will "go-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.

Inhalations are applicable in all diseases of the respiratory organs, but must be prepared for each individual case as they severally require.

By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.

The very best references from those already cured.

CONSULTATION FREE.

A VETERAN OF THE STAGE

SKETCH OF THE CAREER OF JAMES E. MURDOCH.

One of the Old Time Stage Celebrities Now Living in Honorable and Peaceful Retirement at Cincinnati—He Inspired the Poem of "Sheridan's Ride."

CINCINNATI, May 10.—There lives in a quiet suburb of Cincinnati a veteran actor who was a foremost American star before most theatre goers of to-day were born, who trod the boards with the elder Booth, Forrest, and other illustrious lights of the early American stage, in plays whose very names smack of antiquity, who was the ideal Hamlet of his day, from whose acting Edwin Booth might have learned, and doubtless did learn, much of his art, who was equally at home in tragedy or comedy, and who won honors and applause in England such as have been bestowed upon few Americans. To them the very name of James E. Murdoch is but a dim reminiscence. Even when told that he not only first recited that thrilling poem of "Sheridan's Ride," but that he suggested and inspired it, they understand but little more of the personality of the modest old man whose glory, though achieved so long ago, is not the solid because of the haste with which it has been forgotten in this very rapid age.

It is nearly sixty years ago—to be precise, it was on the night of Oct. 13, 1829—when his father, yielding to the pressure of friends who believed in the son's genius, engaged for one night the Arch Street theatre at Philadelphia, with the company then playing there, for the debut of the youthful actor, when he appeared as Frederick in Kotzebue's play of "Lovers' Vows."

At that time he was but a little over 18 years of age, having been born on January 25, 1811. His father was Thomas Murdoch, a book binder, who was afterward an officer in the war of 1812. Always inclined to declamation and the stage, young Murdoch made such progress as an amateur that his father had him brought out as he has been stated. Beginning with the next spring, he entered upon the life of a professional actor, his first engagement being a financially disastrous one at Halifax, where the company failed—and his father had to send him money to return home. Within two years, however, at Portsea's own direction, he was cast as Pythias to the former's Damon at Augusta, Ga. From that time on his progress was steadily upward. A play was written for him by his bosom friend, Robert T. Conrad, which they were unable to put upon the boards, and which, some years afterward when remodeled, was as great a success as Jack. Cade. For ten years Murdoch continued to play in the large American cities. In 1840, while stage manager of the National theatre at Boston, he determined to devote more time to study and left the theatre for a few years, which he devoted to study, teaching and lecturing. He became an enthusiastic disciple of Dr. James Rush, whose work, entitled "The Philosophy of the Voice," he has never ceased to commend, and which he has supplemented with "The Cultivation of the Voice," a work extensively used as a text book among elocutionists.

In 1845 Mr. Murdoch returned to the stage, reappearing as Hamlet at the Park theatre, New York, and for fifteen years he remained a leading light upon the American stage. His versatility was remarkable, and he was equally successful in both tragedy and comedy. His elocution was perhaps the most perfect of any American actor, and his fidelity to the text and the intellectual refinement of his stage conceptions were as conspicuous as they were exceptional. In 1855 he played a most successful engagement in California. The next year he went to England for rest and recreation, but his reputation was so great that English managers insisted upon his playing, with the result that he filled the largest consecutive engagement of his life, his name heading the bills at the Haymarket Theatre, London, for the season of 110 nights. His reception at Liverpool was even more flattering than in the metropolis, until, in the very height of success, he was taken ill, thus compelling the canceling of engagements at other English cities. During his London engagement he played comedy, mostly, taking such characters as Charles Surface, Alfred Evelyn, Rover in "Wild Oats," Don Felix in "The Wonder," and Vapid in "The Dramatist," characters mostly unknown to the present generation. At Liverpool he also played Hamlet, and his rendition was favorably compared to that of Keat and Macready.

After his return to America he settled upon a farm he had bought some years before near Cincinnati, but during the theatrical season he played in all the principal cities of the Union as one of the leading American stars. On the breaking out of the civil war in 1861, all the intense and aggressive patriotism of his nature asserted itself. He sent two sons to the army, one of whom fell at Chickamauga, while he gave his whole soul to the cause of the Union, and served for a time as a volunteer aid to the Union army. By his timely counsel, his fervent exhortation, his unwavering loyalty and ceaseless devotion to the interests of the government and its soldiers, he served his country as effectively as any who bore a musket or carried a sword. He gave readings in aid of ladies' societies for the benefit of sick and wounded soldiers, and published a small volume entitled "Patriotism in Poetry and Prose," the proceeds of which went to the same end. The sum realized from these sources amounted to tens of thousands of dollars.

In the fall of 1864, just after the battle of Cedar Creek, a patriotic meeting was to be held at Pike's opera house, Cincinnati, at which Murdoch was to give a reading. That morning he saw a copy of Harper's Weekly, the frontispiece of which was a picture of "Little Pili" Sheridan galloping from Winchester to the battlefield at Cedar Creek. He gazed at it awhile in admiration and then handed the sheet to his friend, Thomas Buchanan Read, the poet, saying, earnestly: "Buck; there's a poem in that picture!" Read looked; he caught the idea, and putting the paper in his pocket went at once to his room, where he sat down and wrote the immortal poem of "Sheridan's Ride," which Murdoch read that night to thousands of applause. The room in which the poem was written is the third floor front room of the building No. 49 West Eighth street, a large, comfortable, ordinary front room, in a house now used as a boarding house, the landlady of which did not know until a few days ago that she possessed a spot of such historic interest.

For many years after the close of the war Murdoch remained upon his farm near Cincinnati, so closely retired that old friends who visited the city and desired to call upon him could not always find out where he lived.

His time was given wholly to grape raising and the study of his old profession. A series of lectures and essays on elocution were prepared, based on the theories of Dr. Rush. In 1879 he gave a course of readings and lectures before the School of Oratory in Philadelphia. Since then he has lived quietly at his home, making occasional appearances in readings or recitations at Cincinnati and other cities, mostly in the interest of various charities. His last public appearance was at a complimentary benefit tendered him at the Odeon, at Cincinnati, on the night of April 23, Shakespeare's birthday, when he appeared as Sir Charles Surface and Hamlet in suitable scenes selected, to the great gratification of hosts of friends.

The Experiences of a Young Woman in a Cyclone. (Special Correspondence.)

PARDEEVILLE, Wis., May 10.—The following is a letter written by a lady residing at Seary, Ark., to me, and gives a graphic picture of the recent cyclone which devastated portions of the West:

Upon the evening of the recent cyclone, my brother John, a young man named Frank Russell, who worked for father, and I went to a merry making at the residence of a friend about a mile away.

Early in the evening John was seized with an attack of jumping toothache, and started with the horse and buggy for town to have it extracted.

The party was dull, and soon after 9 Frank and I started for home on foot. The road was pleasant and the night not dark.

Scarcely a half mile was traveled, when we were brought to a realization of mundane matters, by a blinding flash of lightning, followed by a fearful crash of thunder.

We paused in consternation. Instantly we became aware of an ominous roaring, and beheld directly ahead of us, and plainly revealed by the incessant flashes of jagged lightning, a huge funnel shaped cloud of an inky blackness. It moved with fearful rapidity, and the roar became deafening.

A small thicket was near, and we had only time to throw ourselves flat upon the ground and grasp a bush near the roots, when it was upon us.

I clung with all my strength to the shrub, and for an instant it held, while my body beat the ground like a ball.

Then the roots gave way, and I was whirled up and off like a feather.

Frank gave an awful cry as he, too, was borne away.

As I was whirled along I was repeatedly struck by flying objects and badly bruised. I was full of an awful terror, but never thought of myself. My father and mother, they would be killed, for the farm house was in the path of the awful scourge, and as there was a hill behind the house, the cloud would not be seen until it burst upon them.

I do not know how long I was whirled through the air. It seemed hours, but minutes would probably cover the time.

I must have been carried to a great height, for suddenly I began falling.

Down, down, so swiftly that I lost consciousness. When I recovered it was broad day. I lay crushed in among a great mass of broken trees and other debris.

For some time I was utterly unable to move, I was so bruised and battered. But at length, by a superhuman exertion, I got upon my feet. Each move was an agony, but I found no bones broken, for which I was supremely thankful.

Upon such a scene of desolation, as it seemed to me, wanton destruction, I pray never again to be compelled to look.

Nothing but ruin, ruin.

Oh, the happy houses destroyed, the dear ones mangled and dead.

I found I had been flung aside like a useless toy, and was near the outer edge of the track of desolation. There was a farm house near, and slowly and painfully I made my way toward it.

Shall I tell you what sort of an appearance I presented?

At the risk of shocking you, I will.

My clothes were literally torn from my body. Of my dress nothing remained but the waist and part of the sleeves. My skirts were all gone, and the bare flesh of my limbs peeped through in many places. My shoes and stockings only remained whole. Altogether I presented a pitiable appearance.

At length I reached the house, where things were tossed about, but not much damage done. I was met by a kindly woman whose, "Oh, you poor, poor creature," at sight of the state I was in, threw me into convulsions weeping.

They were very kind to me, and for days I could not leave the bed. The storm was the night of April 21, and to-day is May 6. I am scarcely able to write, but wished to send you an account while it was fresh in my mind.

Father and mother are alive, but home and all earthly possessions are gone. Brother came through with a broken limb. Frank Russell has not been heard of yet.

But we are all so grateful to have come through this life that we will ungrudgingly begin work anew for a home.

Words are inadequate to give you an idea of the horror of such an experience, and I can only hope that you may never be called upon to endure it.

A Collection of Cacti.

John Hoey has the finest collection of cacti in this country. Elaborate preparations are being made for the carpet bedding display the coming season at Hollywood park. Last summer a rug with a passion flower vine traced through it was one of the most admirable beds. An old couple were riding through the park one rainy day, and seeing the rug spread out on the turf, supposed they had been forgotten. They drove up to the mansion to notify the family, and wondered that "John's folks could be so careless" as they jogged up.—New York Sun.

TWO FRIENDS MEET.

"Hello! old fellow. What have you been doing to yourself? You look like a subject for the undertaker," exclaimed the man on the right.

"I have been taking mercury and potash mixtures until they have nearly ruined me," squeaked the old man on crutches.

"And I," said the other, "have been taking the genuine Swift's specific, which has built me up from the first dose."

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC.

Nature's own remedy, made from roots gathered from the forests of Georgia. The method by which it is made was obtained by a half-breed from the Creek Indians, who inhabited a certain portion of Georgia, which was communicated to one of the early settlers, and thus the formula has been handed down to the present day.

The demand has been increasing, until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and charged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great Ventura.

THE FIRST TRAINS—A SILLY HUMOR CAUSES EXCITEMENT.

SAN BUENAVENTURA, May 19.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] A large crowd of our citizens assembled at the Ventura depot to witness the departure at 12:05 and arrival at 1 p.m. of the first regular passenger trains. Photographs of the trains were taken by J. C. Brewster. The trains pass each other at Satcoy, in the center of Santa Clara Valley.

Our town was excited yesterday over a telegram from Los Angeles, stating a branch road of the Atchison system would be built from Los Angeles to Ventura, through the Simi, Los Posas and Santa Clara valleys, this year. The news was hailed with great delight.

We are having a little boom on Main street. Business property is jumping, and vacant lots have gone up from $60 to $150 a front foot.

Congressman Vandever and daughter returned home yesterday.

U. S. District Attorney Brooks is visiting Ventura, where he has large real-estate interests. Preparations for the Floral Festival on the 25th, 26th, 27th, are actively going on. The committee of the Development Association have been notified that excursion rates from Los Angeles on the 25th have been placed at $2.50 round-trip. This will be an excellent opportunity for Los Angeles people to pay us a neighborly visit to observe our fertile valley, and to examine our wonderful fruits and flowers.

Our nearness to Los Angeles, the metropolis of Southern California, the mildness of our climate, and the richness of our soil, will surprise most of our people, and awaken them to our value as a commercial tributary to your city.

Orange and Vicinity.

WATER MATTERS—SHOT AT.

ORANGE, May 19.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] New hay, which is quite plenty, is of a superior quality.

This morning, by way of variety, there was a fine shower, which settled the dust nicely, but was not heavy enough to injure new-mown hay.

Chinese clothes-washers have made a little raise on their prices, and now is a good time for white laundries to canvass this valley.

Quite a number of persons, not getting word of the postponement of the Bodkin trial, as published in Sunday's TIMES, took the Monday morning train and visited Los Angeles, only to find that they were not needed at present.

It seems to be a settled fact with orchardists that the scale is all dying out. The cause of this sudden change is a mystery, as up to this spring the different washes used appeared only to destroy the trees, while the bugs rapidly increased in numbers.

Messrs. Bond and Stone, who have been visiting their families, the first at Santa Barbara, the other at Oakland, are back again at Earlham, and, with Mr. Hoyt, pushing business in the line of developing the various resources within the range of possibilities on their large ranch in that vicinity.

The work of setting the huge steam pump into position, at the head of the ditch, is progressing as rapidly as possible. Fortunately, brick on which to set the boiler and engine, though scarce, on account of the great amount of building going on, was secured in good time, and the foundation will now soon be ready to support its burden of machinery.

Irrigating water from the ditches, which has for several months been run on application, to stockholders needing it, can now be had only in regular turns, beginning at the head of the ditch and coming down.

Sunday night, as some parties were riding home from church, at a point not far from town, they were suddenly fired upon with a revolver from behind, one shot passing through a man's coat-sleeve, and another young man getting a hole through his hatbrim. Investigation showed that the shooting was done by two boys, aged about 17 or 18, who were walking in the same direction. They claim that the firing was only for fun, and without any malicious intentions. They were arrested and brought before Justice Smith, who fined them, respectively, the shooter $100, or sixty days in jail; the other, as accessory, $50, or twenty-five days in jail. Both are from good families, and the friends are naturally very greatly afflicted over such conduct on the part of the boys.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Successful Erring Woman's Home.
PASADENA, May 17.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I have watched with much interest your reports of progress made by Mrs. H. A. Watson in her noble efforts to establish a Home for Erring Girls, and wish through your columns to give a few facts concerning a similar institution in Iowa.

At the annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Iowa, in 1879, Mrs. Lovina Benedict, a Quaker lady, whose heart had long been interested in the welfare of unfortunate girls, came pleading that the organization endorse her efforts for their rescue, and provide for them a home. The project being in perfect accord with the spirit of an organization whose object is to "rescue the perishing, lift up the fallen," the society at once adopted it, became incorporated, purchased a suitable property in the city of Des Moines, and opened the home in September of 1882.

The institution bears the name, "Benedict Home for Erring Women." The means for the purchase of the property, support of inmates and all other necessary expenses were contributed by the people of the State, in response to the solicitations of Mrs. Benedict, the authorized agent. In addition to the money thus obtained, the General Assembly of 1883-'84 appropriated $5000, and the Legislature of 1885-'86 $3000, to its support. Mrs. Benedict, now being engaged in another branch of the same philanthropy, the home is without a traveling agent, and is supported entirely by the voluntary gifts of the people. To quote from the last report of the board of managers: "For a little more than three years the doors of the Benedict Home have stood open as a haven, a sort of 'city of refuge' for those who sincerely desire to flee from woman's worst foe—impunity. Within these doors have passed girls from almost every nationality and station in life. In the last year alone we have received them from the brothel, the jail, the poorhouse, the street, from the farmhouse and the city home; girls who have had no education, no training, no parental care, no home, no love, and a few who have had all of these."

Since its opening it has sheltered 139 inmates. Of this number but six have voluntarily returned to their former lives. Eight have married and are in comfortable homes of their own, seven have been sent to the Girls' Reform School, seven to the Insane Asylum, one to the Asylum for the Blind, one to the hospital, and six have died. Twenty-nine have been returned to relatives and friends, forty-six have found good homes as servants, nurses, etc., and the remainder are still under the sheltering care of the home.

The average cost per capita per annum has been $106.49, the cost per capita for the past year being only $86.38.

The girls are taught habits of neatness and industry, are trained as nurses, house-servants, seamstresses, etc., have medical attention, religious instruction, and are under the care and influence of a matron and assistant, both of whom are refined Christian ladies. The property is held for the State Union by a board of trustees, and the government and control of the inmates is vested in a board of managers—all Christian women. The most encouraging feature of the institution is the fact that 90 per cent. of all who have been admitted have been reformed, not only rescued from lives of shame, but a large proportion hopefully converted to Christ.

These facts are known to me as a member for several years of the executive committee of the Iowa W. C. T. U., and are thus given in the hope that confidence in the success of a similar undertaking here may be inspired and sustained.

A BAREFOOTED HERO.

A Little Boy Captures a Wild Team and Saves a Child's Life.
[Sacramento Bee.]

About 6 o'clock last evening a thrilling scene was witnessed on Twentieth street, between I and J. The people residing in that neighborhood were horrified to see a team of horses come dashing along the street, drawing a carriage in which was seated a beautiful little girl not more than 5 years old. The carriage bounced along the rough street, and everybody expected to see it overturned every instant. The little tot held fast to the sides of the vehicle with a bravery that was surprising in one so young. Women screamed, some nearly fainted, and strong men remarked that the babe could not escape death.

Presently a little barefooted boy, who could not have been over 12 years old, was seen to dash right in front of the swift-running horses, grab one of them by the bridle and cling desperately to it. He jerked the horses and yelled to them, and finally managed to turn them into a fence-corner, where they were stopped without any damage being done. It was a most daring feat on the part of the boy, and those who gathered about the carriage patted the brave little fellow on the head, and the women were so overjoyed that they fairly smothered him with kisses.

After the little girl had been tenderly lifted out of the carriage, an old German came running up, almost out of breath. He managed to exclaim, "Oh, mein Gott, ish der horses hurt?" "Say, Mister, there's der kid wot stopped yer hosses," said an urchin, pointing to the little hero, who stood at the head of the animals.

"Oh, ish dot so?" remarked the German, in an indifferent way. "Johnny, I guess der man means to thank yer," said the talkative boy, "but I guess he's too tired to say so." The German entered his carriage and drove leisurely away, without even looking at the boy who had saved his child's life. Those who stood around, and who had witnessed the horrifying event, muttered curses because the lad had not been given a handful of money, or at least a heartfelt "Thank you."
